Letter from the Editor

A survey conducted this year by the New Zealand Aged Care Association (NZACA) and the Retirement Villages Association (RVA) showed that 94% of their members who responded valued INsite as the independent publication for the aged care and retirement sectors.

We're excited to announce that next year we're taking INsite in a bold new direction. From 2017, INsite will be online-only, with a much higher frequency of contact. We will connect with our readers weekly by email to alert them to new content. We are expanding our email database to ensure everyone involved in the operation and management of New Zealand's rest homes, retirement villages and home-based community support organisations is kept informed and up to date.

INsite will continue to feature a broad range of content, from sector news updates, to opinion pieces, to feature articles to discussion forums.

We will continue to penetrate a broad range of highly relevant topics, including health tech solutions, legal issues, investment trends, design and innovation, diet and nutrition, workforce issues, long-term care needs, education and training, trends in home health, disabilities, woundcare, infection control and other clinical issues.

Our readers are your customers and we look forward to collaborating with you on our new, revamped INsite.

Testimonial

"The establishment of Insite as a credible informative industry magazine for the retirement village and aged care sectors some 10 years ago represents the continuing maturing of our industries to where they are considered mainstream today. Over 60,000 senior New Zealanders now live in a retirement village or aged care facility with the number set to massively increase over the next 20 years. When Insite started there were two listed companies from the sector and today there are five with others likely to join them in the near term. The sector will continue to get larger and more diverse, and new products and variations will emerge.

Insite is a valuable tool providing advice for senior managers on an operational level and strategic direction for village owners and developers. It fills a vital role in documenting best practice, innovations and acts as a watch dog to prevent any operator breaching the ethical line.

All operators thank and value the role that your magazine provides."
